“In my opinion, this is the best thing to help farmers that has happened in the last 40 years”

In times of economic hardship, Kentucky Farm Business Management (KFBM) is striving to help you with one of the most challenging parts of your organization -- farm management. With a streamlined record-keeping system and the counsel of a trained specialist -- we'll strive to find ways to make your farm run smoother and save you money.

About KFBM

KFBM has been serving Kentucky's agricultural industry since 1962 by assisting member farmers in tracking financial performance, determining the profitability of individual enterprises, improving management practices, completing tax returns, setting business and personal goals, and making sound management decisions.

Organization

- Joint effort of the University of Kentucky Department of Agricultural Economics and five Area Farm Management Groups.
- Board of directors made up of member farmers.
- Policy and direction set by the board within the KFBM framework.
- Provides factual economic information about Kentucky farms for use in research, teaching, and extension.

Mission Statement

The mission of the Kentucky Farm Business Management Program is to provide a records-based information system to assist Kentucky farmers in defining and reaching their goals. This mission is extended to KFBM clientele through direct consultation and to the general population through research, education, and extension programs of the University of Kentucky.

Member Benefits

Members may receive information and assistance with what many consider the most difficult part of farming: management.

Some of these benefits include:

- ✓ Use of a detailed farm record-keeping system designed to help with farm management decision-making.
- ✓ Counsel with a trained specialist to develop business and family priorities, compare costs and returns, and examine alternative plans for management of the farm business.
- ✓ Computerized economic analysis of the farm business, including financial statements, cost and return analysis, crop and livestock enterprise analysis and comparative benchmarking with similar size and type of farm businesses.
- ✓ Information to use with lenders and tax professionals, including balance sheets, accrual income statements, depreciation schedules, and completed income tax worksheets.
- ✓ Personal contact with an area specialist in farm management through on-farm visits, phone calls, newsletters, and office visits.

Costs

The University of Kentucky and member farmers share in the cost of the KFBM Program. The local board of directors determines membership dues and other fees according to their cost structure.
