

Devil's nose train (Nariz del Diablo) leaves from the Alausi station and winds through spectacular scenery in the Andes highlands

Devil's nose train station

It is strictly forbidden to walk across the train bridge

The houses around the train station are wonderfully colorful

Devil's nose train

ecuador

ama la vida

The conductor looks way to enthusiastic about the upcoming train ride

Kyle

All aboard the Devil's nose train

The guidebook says the best views are on the right side of the train !

View from the train

A hillside full of Furcraea andina

The train uses a switchback technique to turn in the steep canyons

The train backs up at the switchback rather than trying to turn

The Devil's nose

Traditional dancing at the destination station

Savannah

Llama and alpaca greet train riders

Olivia and Jamie visit with the llama and alpaka

