

Puerto Viejo, the Caribbean
beach experience.

The Caribbean side of Costa Rica definitely had a different feel compared to the mountains of Arenal and Monteverde.

Puerto Viejo had the cool
vib, the good karma.

Feel the Caribbean.

We stayed at the Jacaranda hotel.

I am not sure if any of the group opted for the "Cranial Sacral Acupuncture".

Of course, the WiFi code
for the hotel was "Rainbow".

The mosquito nets over our beds in our rooms suggest that the rooms would be different once the rainy season began in earnest.

The "Vib" in the hotel was always a consideration.

But some of the aspects of the hotel were a bit disarming.

Puerto Viejo advertisement as a sidewall mural shows the diversity of activities available on the Caribbean side of Costa Rica.

This Puerto Viejo landmark helped the late night revelers find their way home to the Jacaranda hotel. I heard the dancing from our group was noted as exceptional from the locals.

Thunbergii flowers heralding a
Caribbean breakfast.

Puerto Viejo beach in the morning.

Puerto Viejo beach in the morning.

Puerto Viejo beach in the morning.

Puerto Viejo was just like that.

Revelers from the previous nights fun. Actually, our morning breakfast place.

A walk along the beach.

Fishing from a beached barge.

Puerto Viejo beach party.

Puerto Viejo beach party.

Puerto Viejo beach party.

Puerto Viejo beach party.

Swimming in the Caribbean sea.

Swimming in the Caribbean sea.

Swimming in the Caribbean sea.

