

Kentucky Agricultural Leadership Program

Participant Commitment Form

It is an honor to be a part of this program and thus participants are expected to be responsible leaders who project a positive image of themselves, KALP, and Kentucky agriculture. All participants are expected to:

- attend all seminars, trips, and program activities
- be punctual for all seminars and activities
- be committed for learning and personal growth
- be courteous and respectful to class members, speakers, tour guides, staff, donors, guests, alumni, and program directors
- interact with class members and participate in program activities such as assignments, presentations, and discussion sessions
- be willing to listen respectfully to speakers or class members with differing ideas, beliefs, and value systems
- actively participate in alumni activities following graduation

Each participant selected will receive a KALP Fellowship valued at $28,000. Your tuition responsibility is $2,000 payable in two equal $1,000 installments by December 15, 2009, and December 15, 2010. In limited cases, scholarships may be provided to deserving qualified candidates. Participants will be responsible for travel expense to and from the Kentucky seminar sites and to the point of departure for domestic and international study tours. Travel expenses associated with the domestic and international study tours will be paid from the fellowship.
