C = The educational unit administrator must consult with the educational unit faculty in this category, but written judgments from those faculty are not required.

R = The educational unit administrator is required to consult with the faculty in this category and obtain their written judgments.

I = The educational unit administrator is not required to consult with the educational unit faculty in this category. However, in accordance with footnote 3 below, the educational unit administrator may consult with the educational unit faculty in this category and may invite them to submit written judgments. The participation of the educational unit faculty in this category, either in the consultative process or the submission of written judgments, is strictly voluntary.

¹ Faculty persons appointed in the research or adjunct title series, and faculty persons appointed in visiting or other temporary positions, need not participate in these appointment and review activities. Also, educational unit faculty on approved leaves and those with primary administrative, service or other assignments outside of the educational unit may elect to submit written judgments, but they are not required to do so.

² Directors of Multidisciplinary Research Centers and Institutes in which the candidate under review has an assignment.

³ The educational unit rules document may codify a policy of the unit to extent privileges of consultative input and/or written judgments to categories of faculty employees of the educational unit who otherwise are not entitled to participate (GR VII.A.6).
