February 2012

ABOUT THE SPEAKER

Dr. Jacqueline Noonan will speak at the February 14 luncheon. As the first to describe this genetic disorder in 1963, she has been active in its research and treatment since then. She will provide for us an interesting first-person account of the initial recognition and general acceptance of this rare disorder.

A native of Burlington, Vermont, she grew up in Hartford, Connecticut. She received her BA from Albertus Magnus College in 1950, and her MD from the University of Vermont in 1954. After an internship in Chapel Hill, NC and a pediatric residency at Cincinnati Children's Hospital, she completed a cardiology fellowship with Dr. Alex Nada at Boston Children's Hospital.

In 1961, she came to the newly opened College of Medicine and served as chief of pediatric cardiology until her retirement in 1998. She was chair of Pediatrics from 1974-1992. In retirement, she has continued a very busy teaching schedule. She served as President of UKAEF for two terms: 2002-2003; 2003-2004.

THREE FELLOWSHIPS AWARDED

Three UK graduate students were selected by the Fellowship Committee as recipients of the 2011 UKAEF Fellowships. This year seventeen applications were submitted and appraised by the committee comprised of John Shaw, Chair, John Greenway and Thomas Lillich. The awardees have been invited to join us at the February 2012 membership luncheon. All three candidates plan on University or college teaching.

Brian Grabbatin, Geography. Brian began his Ph.D. studies in the fall of 2008. His research is in the field of political ecology and involves an investigation of the relationships between natural resources and heirs' property (a form of collective landownership among family members) in coastal South Carolina. It explores the effects of changing property regimes and has implications for those living in Appalachia who own land as tenants in common. For five semesters at UK, Brian had full responsibility for teaching an undergraduate course in physical geography. He now teaches human geography courses at two colleges in South Carolina while conducting his field research. He plans on a university teaching career.

Andrea Hollinger, English. Andrea started her doctoral studies at UK in the fall of 2009. For her dissertation, she is investigating narratives dealing with management of domestic servants in 19th century America—a situation that generated a complex mixture of class, race and gender anxiety and distress at the time. Her teaching of three courses in the department have received enthusiastic compliments from both faculty and students. She hopes to defend her dissertation in 2014.

Joshua Seth Lee, English. Seth is in his fourth year of PhD studies. His research concerns the politics and discourse of individuals who spent time in religious exile from England during the 16th century and how they encountered continental humanist traditions that altered their understanding of reformation and revolutionary writing. Seth feels that the literature of the exile from that period is particularly relevant in the modern world. He has presented papers at prestigious national and inter-national conferences and has been a much-lauded teaching assistant.

CHANGE IN LUNCHEON PRICES

In November, the Boone Center informed us that, due to the higher costs of food, it was losing money on our luncheons. After meeting with their representatives, our Board members agreed to pay the Center $2.40 more per lunch. To ensure that UKAEF does not lose money, we need to increase the price that we charge our members for luncheons from $19 to $20.

We hope that this is not an inconvenience, but the increase will allow us a greater choice in luncheon menus.
