Texas A&M University
Department of Health and Kinesiology

Visiting Clinical Assistant and Instructional Assistant Professors

The Division of Health Education within the Department of Health and Kinesiology (HLKN) at Texas A&M University (TAMU) seeks nominations and applicants to join an outstanding faculty of health educators in a program offering BS, MS, online MS, and PhD degrees in Health Education. The Division of Health Education is seeking three highly qualified health educators for the positions of Visiting Clinical Assistant (2) and Visiting Instructional Assistant Professor (1). The Division places equal emphasis on the professional preparation of undergraduate and graduate students, and requires both rigorous scholarship and sponsored research agendas of its highly successful faculty. The Health Division serves approximately 1,500 undergraduate and graduate students.

Visiting Clinical Assistant Professor Qualifications: Successful candidates for this position should hold a doctoral degree in Health Education or a closely related discipline and must demonstrate a record of contribution to the mission of the Division of Health within HLKN, including successful and effective teaching ability, record of scholarly publications and presentations, and service to the profession of health education. CHES or MCHES certification is preferred. The candidate’s university teaching and scholarly record must be commensurate with appointment as a Clinical Assistant Professor with a Graduate Faculty appointment at TAMU.

Responsibilities: Responsibilities include teaching undergraduate and/or graduate courses, conducting research and presenting research in scholarly publications and presentations, serving on departmental committees, serving on master’s and doctoral committees.

Visiting Instructional Assistant Professor Qualifications: Successful candidates for this position may hold a doctoral degree in Health Education or a closely related discipline and must demonstrate a record of contribution to the mission of the Division of Health within HLKN, including successful and effective teaching ability and service to the profession of health education. CHES or MCHES certification is preferred. The candidate’s university teaching and service activities must be commensurate with appointment as an Instructional Assistant Professor appointment at Texas A&M University.

Responsibilities: Responsibilities include teaching undergraduate and/or graduate courses and serving on departmental committees.

Appointment: This is a nine-month visiting position with an anticipated start date is August 15, 2015. Salary will be competitive and commensurate with the candidate’s qualifications and experience.

Application Process: Candidates should provide (1) a letter of application highlighting the applicant’s qualifications for this position; (2) a current, comprehensive Curriculum Vitae; (3) materials and resources to support applicant’s teaching expertise; and (4) the name, address (including e-mail) and telephone numbers of three references. Application materials and questions should be submitted to:

Kelly Wilson, PhD, MCHES
TAMU 4243
College Station, TX 77843-4243
E-mail: kwilson@hlkn.tamu.edu
Department web site: http://hlknweb.tamu.edu

Application Review: Review of applications will begin by May 22, 2015 and continue until the positions are filled. For more information, visit TAMU website at: http://www.tamu.edu and the HLKN website (http://hlknweb.tamu.edu/)

Texas A&M University is an affirmative action, equal opportunity employer. The University is dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse and pluralistic faculty and staff committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment and strongly encourages applications from women, minorities, individuals with disabilities and covered veterans.