COURSE INFORMATION

EPSY 6349 (3 Credit Hours)
Fall Semester 2007
Monday 6:00 – 8:50pm
Education Building, Room 301

COURSE DESCRIPTION

An examination of the psychological construct of self-efficacy, related research, and its application across academic and non-academic settings, and to a wide variety of research areas.

COURSE PURPOSE

This course is intended for students who want to pursue advanced readings in the study of the psychological construct of self-efficacy, related research, and its application across academic and non-academic settings, and to a wide variety of research areas. The readings are organized to reflect the diverse ways in which the construct can be applied across academic (e.g., teaching, career counseling) and non-academic fields (e.g., clinical, sports) to explain phenomenon such as self-regulation, motivation, learning, and behavior.

RELATIONSHIP TO THE CONCEPTUAL FRAMEWORK

As articulated in the Conceptual Framework of the College of Education, knowledge based on research findings, combined with sound professional practice and educators' proficiencies and content knowledge, is the driving force of the missions, visions, beliefs, ethics, and values of the College of Education. The essence of the conceptual framework is captured by the theme, “Professional Educators Opening Doors to the Future.” In EPSY 6349 the doors are opened metaphorically by assisting in the development and preparation of scholar-practitioners. In this sense and in this course, a scholar-practitioner has a firm understanding of self-efficacy theory, research and its practical application in K-12 and post-secondary educational settings and in non-academic settings.
COURSE READINGS

Additional assigned readings for this course will come from a variety of sources (e.g., journal articles and book chapters, etc) (See Appendix A).

COURSE WEBPAGE (WebCT)

The course webpage contains this syllabus in its most current form, course grades, and other noteworthy information for the course, including but not limited to the following: assignments and discussion questions. If you experience problems with the webpage, please contact the instructor immediately.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Please see Appendix B for a general description of the core learning outcomes and methods of assessing these outcomes.

ASSESSMENT OF LEARNING OUTCOMES

Grades are computed based on satisfactory completion of the course requirements. Unexcused absences and late assignments will lower your grade. Grades may be raised based upon your ability to contribute to class discussions and group activities. Below is a breakdown of the grading and the grading scale.

<tr>
<td>By the conclusion of EPSY 6349, the student will be able to:</td>
<td>To assess these learning outcomes students will:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>discuss the theme, “Professional Educators Opening Doors to the Future,” as it relates to educational psychology.</td>
<td>engage in ongoing group discussions describing how self-efficacy research and its implications can assist educational practitioners in designing self-efficacy building interventions that may influence learning and behavior.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>define the term self-efficacy and discuss how self-efficacy beliefs differ from other types of self-beliefs (e.g., self-concept, self-esteem, etc).</td>
<td>engage in ongoing group discussions comparing and contrasting self-efficacy with other psychological constructs, while illustrating these similarities and differences with examples.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>explain how self-efficacy beliefs are formed and the development of self-efficacy beliefs across the lifespan.</td>
<td>engage in ongoing group discussions about the factors that influence the formation of self-efficacy beliefs and the development of self-efficacy beliefs among children, adolescents, and adults.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>design a self-efficacy building intervention, which incorporates the four sources of information (e.g., vicarious experiences).</td>
<td>use research findings to design self-efficacy building interventions appropriate for individuals with high or low self-efficacy beliefs who may be situated in a variety of academic and non-academic settings.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>compare and contrast the characteristics of individuals with high and low self-efficacy beliefs.</td>
<td>read several case studies documenting the thoughts and behaviors of individuals with varying levels of self-efficacy beliefs. Using the information presented in the case study, students will identify individual as having a low or high sense of efficacy.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>describe the relationship between self-efficacy, student motivation, and academic achievement.</td>
<td>summarize research (via ongoing group discussions and/or literature review) which documents how student motivation and academic achievement may fluctuate as a function of self-efficacy beliefs.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>illustrate how self-efficacy beliefs influence self-regulation, motivation, learning, and behavior.</td>
<td>develop examples that show how self-efficacy beliefs influence self-regulation, motivation, learning, and behavior.</td>
