

CAREGIVER WELL-BEING

6 Tenets of Self-Care

Follow these best practices for well-being during times of uncertainty.

Social Well-Being

- Maintain connection by staying in touch with family and friends
- Seek and accept help from others
- Join a virtual support group

Physical Well-Being

- Eat a balanced diet
- Exercise regularly
- Get a good night's sleep
- Tend to your own health care needs

Emotional Well-Being

- Recognize stress, then take steps to manage it
- Keep a journal
- Set aside some "me time"
- Know your limitations and boundaries
- Be mindful, present and judgment-free
- Practice gratitude

Preparedness Well-Being

- Learn about your loved one's condition
- Know your loved one's medical information (pharmacy, medications, health history, etc.)
- Know your loved one's SSN and birthdate

Financial Well-Being

- Research programs to help cover caregiving costs and expenses
- Set a budget
- Consider temporary loan, credit card and mortgage deferments
- Review your options if you need to leave your job to become a caregiver
- Review your retirement savings
- Create necessary legal documents (POA, living will, will, DNR)

Career Well-Being

- Communicate with your supervisor and co-workers
- Review options for flex time
- Organize home and work calendars
- Manage your phone calls and emails to ensure that work and your loved one are tended to
- Use vacation time as vacation time
- Learn about leave policies, like FMLA

Elder Care and Counseling can help! Utilize your available resources.

www.uky.edu/hr/work-life/elder-care www.uky.edu/hr/work-life/counseling