6. Information to be Placed on Syllabus.
   a. ☐ Check box if changed to 400G or 500.

If changed to 400G or 500-level course you must send in a syllabus and you must include the differentiation between undergraduate and graduate students by: (i) requiring additional assignments by the graduate students, and/or (ii) establishing different grading criteria in the course for graduate students. (See SR 3.1.4)

*See comment description regarding minor course change. Minor changes are sent directly from dean’s office to Senate Council Chair. Chair deems the change as “not minor.” The form will be appropriate academic council for normal processing and contact person is informed.

*Courses are typically made effective for the semester following approval. No course will be made effective until all approvals are received.

*Signature of the chair of the cross-listing department is required on the Signature Routing Log.

*If changing a cross-listing does not drop the other course — it merely adds the two courses.

*Generally, undergraduate courses are developed such that one semester hr of credit represents 1 hr of classroom meeting per wk for a semester, exclusive of any lab meeting. Lab meeting gens least two hrs per wk for a semester for 1 credit hour. (See SR 3.2.7.)

*You must also submit the Distance Learning Form in order for the course to be considered for DL delivery.

*In order to change a program, a program change form must also be submitted.
Course Review Form
Intellectual Inquiry in Arts & Creativity

Course: DES 100

Using the course syllabus as reference, identify when and how the following learning outcomes are addressed in the course. Since learning outcomes will likely be addressed multiple ways within the same syllabus, please identify a representative example (or examples) for each outcome.

☑ An artifact (e.g. an object, product, installation, presentation, record of a performance etc.) that demonstrates personal engagement with the creative process either as an individual or as part of a collaborative.

Example(s) from syllabus:
The DESIGN AUTOBIOGRAPHY assignment.

Brief Description:
Students construct a personal view of design utilizing the objects, spaces, buildings, and places from their everyday world. After practicing the analysis of artifacts earlier in the semester, the students use a creative process to elaborate a view of their world. Expected products might include films, instagram collages, public performances (in class), or websites.

☑ Evidence that students utilize readings, lectures, presentations or other resources to define and distinguish approaches (historical, theoretical, and methodological issues) to "creativity" as appropriate to the disciplinary practices specific to the subject, medium, or approach of this course.

Example(s) from syllabus:
The ANALYSIS "informance."

Brief Description:
Throughout the first unit of the course, students learn about design at four scales. They use the readings, lectures, and presentations in this unit to help inform approaches to the study of design. During this unit, they select an object, space, building, or place for analysis. Borrowing on approaches from the class (or approaches that students might themselves bring), they create an "informance" for their peers. Expected "informances" will be encouraged to go beyond Powerpoint presentations. For this "informance," students will also detail a written/illustrated document to share on a class blog. This curated space provides analysis for peer review (see below).

☑ The processes and assignments where students apply the logic, laws, and/or constraints of the area of study, (e.g. "out of the box" thinking or application of given rules or forms).

Example(s) from syllabus:
OBJECT/SPACE/BUILDING/PLACE ANALYSIS; the FINAL EXAM

Brief Description:
Throughout the course, students regularly participate in "design thinking" to investigate the impacts of processes and products that generate in many aspects of human culture. Particularly in the base assignment for the course, the OBJECT/SPACE/BUILDING/PLACE ANALYSIS, students regularly engage the parameters of design in considering the artifacts they analyze. In the FINAL EXAM, they write about their learning from that initial ANALYSIS project -- but significantly in all elements throughout the course -- to demonstrate the application of design constraints and opportunities across many scales.
Assignments or exercises that require students to demonstrate the ability to critically analyze work produced by other students in this course and in co-curricular events using appropriate tools.

Example(s) from syllabus:
The ANALYSIS OF ANOTHER STUDENT'S ANALYSIS project; the MOVIE REVIEW project.

Brief Description:
In the curated space created to hold the ANALYSIS projects, students will be assigned to review another peer's work and provide an alternative view or reading of that cultural artifact for consideration. In doing so, students reveal a wide variety of approaches to design as a creative product. For the movie review, students gather outside of class for screenings of three movies (co-curricular moment). During class, the students discuss the movies and the themes within the course, keeping design as a creative process and product in mind. They ultimately provide a written analysis of a specific movie. Alternative modes of expression are considered here beyond a seminar paper.

The process whereby students evaluate the process and results of their own creative endeavors and, using that evaluation, reassess and refine their work.

Example(s) from syllabus:
The FINAL EXAMINATION.

Brief Description:
In an illustrated essay, students will examine the place of design in the world. They will be encouraged to focus on the creative design process and products that they have examined throughout the semester. In that all of the requirements for the course are scaffolded activities (pre-writes and expressions for analysis "informance", the informance itself, the analysis of another's work, the movie review, and the design autobiography), the final examination provides the site for students to ultimately evaluate, assess, and refine their work.

Describe how students demonstrate the use of information literacy resources:
Images, texts, and objects serve as the main media for this course. One facet of information literacy is dealing with the visual world and its inherent challenges and viewpoints as well as the creative forms of expression it embodies. Students will grapple with the silent voices of the various artifacts under examination and will learn various approaches to information literacy from a visual perspective.
